

Legal notice and privacy policy

Terms of Use

The use of the Stargames Oy website (“Stargames” or the “Company”) requires following the terms of use set forth below. Use of the Stargames website is prohibited if you do not agree to follow these terms.

Disclaimer

The contents of this web site are provided on “as is” basis based on experience and research and are not a warranty with respect to the accuracy, completeness or reliability of the information included in the website. Nothing included in Stargames website can be held as a binding offer or commitment of Stargames.

Stargames reserves the right to modify the terms of use and information provided on the Stargames website including its content or part thereof at any time without prior notice. Stargames does not make commitment or warranty as to the accessibility of the Stargames website.

Information Submitted by the User

The user of the Stargames website is solely responsible for the accuracy and delivery of information and materials submitted to the Company’s website and that the user is entitled to provide Stargames with such information or materials. The user of the Stargames website must take all reasonable measures to ensure that information and materials submitted to Stargames do not contain malware, viruses or other potentially malicious software.

Personal Information

The privacy and security of the user’s personal information is important. Stargames complies with all applicable legislation on personal data protection possible.

Stargames which is registered and located in Finland is the owner of all intellectual property rights regarding its’ name. Through company extensive and continuous use and promotion of its products, company name is recognized around the world, and its intellectual property has acquired substantial good will. Stargames Oy does not permit the unauthorized use of its name, cc-top level and generic internet domains, copyrighted works and registered trademark.